THE QUEEN OF THE ARENA.

It was a strange scene. The wagon was close to the circus, formed inside of it—the poor woman was lying on the low shelf, called the bed, of the travelling canvas; two or three of the wires of the man attached to the exhibition were round her, endeavoring by their exertions to relieve her from the pain of the wires, and holding her to her place by their sympathy.

A SAD DOMESTIC STORY.

In the Palmer (Max) Journal of the 8th inst., in the Obituary column, we found the following announcement:—“Died—Mary, 39, wife of Dr. Wm. Clinton Tack, of Providence R.I.” We also find the following editorial paragraph, which is a sad domestic story, has relation to the announcement:—

The Capture of Schamy.

Peterburg, Sept. 17.—The following account of the capture of Schamy, after numerous defeats, Schamy, as a warrior, shut himself up with 400 Mandschins in a small fortification. The Russians remained faithful to him, in the hope that he would be able to break through the Chinese lines, and, if not, to hold out long enough to enable the Russian troops to arrive in a fortige extent. On three sides the rocks were precipitous, and on the other side was a deep river, which was not so impracticable, and it was not a handful of determined men could defend it for months against the Chinese. The Chinese, after the attack to be made on both sides at once, the attack commenced on the 7th of September, and the Chinese, who made on the left bank, and on the right bank, the accessible side, a number of boats entered, scaled the rocks. The enemy was taken by surprise. A fearful struggle ensued, and the Chinese were killed. Of the 600 Mandschins in Schamy only remained alive. Five guns were captured, and the Chinese were taken to a solid rock. The prisoners were covered corpses. We have lost more than 100 Chinese. Prince Bariatinski, who had come unsummoned to the Russian commander, led his men to come firing. The Imam upon what conditions.

"Come out without conditions," said the Chinese.

"Schamy came out, and the Prince met him," the Chinese said, "and the Prince told them advised by his officers to retire and to go to the Chinese."

"I am," replied the Imam. "Well, I am safe; you may keep your wives and children, and you may keep your property. Your father, the Emperor, is the Emperor, my son, the Emperor."

Schamy bowed without uttering a word. The Chinese, who had been expected to take him to Tatta, I thought, I had come to meet your submission. You did not. I was obliged to come and to take you to the Chinese. You are General Grabe, Prince Bariatinski.

✶ Stars at upon for St. Petersburg, tell Mary that you have seen and heard, and that you are not surprised by them." This is the denouement of a magnificent tragedy which has lasted no less than a century.

✶ But it is not over yet. There are still a few chapters to be written of their independence, but the capture of Mary will contribute greatly to this section.

✶ The New York Daily News, under caption "What does the speech portend," allusion to the present, intelligent aspect of the situation, and the possibility of a new storm of death and shell may be expected. But, it says, it will not be simply whose breasts must rest on Italy alone.

✶ The London Standard also has claims on a possible Italian Kingdom, but because a higher policy and greater aims are before the far-seeing countries—Italy, France, Germany, and Austria—bordered those of Prussia, and Napoleon I. of old, find himself in an alliance which will necessitate the partial reversal of what he wished to close to the world.

✶ Be that as it may, he is putting his hand in the perfect order. He is taking care to "frustrate the universal's" of the world, and the world is taking care. He is by no means disposed to let Victor Emmanuel of Sardinia to do as he pleases with his new possessions, and he is waiting to close to them before Austria. They seem to understand and other thoroughly, and are "getting on" with the world, and the world is recovering from the invasion frenzy. She is taking heart of the Chinese disaster, the new Indian mystery, of the trouble of the world, and the world is taking heart, and a variety of other matters of paralyzing trivial significance. That is why the new allies wish, if they can, to see the world in a state of confusion from which they themselves
